OUTFALL SEWERAGE PLANT URGED BY L. A. OFFICIALS

Formation of District Under Discussion; Sludge System Opposed by Speaker

Shall Glendale join a metropolitan sewer district?

Ralph Criswell, member of the Los Angeles City Council, last night at a conference of the local sewer committee stated definitely that the plans for an enlarged Los Angeles sewer system would accommodate Burbank and Glendale and that he personally would be agreeable to some equitable arrangement whereby Glendale could connect with this system without the necessity of annexing to Los Angeles.

The value of the activated sludge system was discounted by Mr. Criswell. He declared that it might be necessary in inland communities, but that there was no question about the outfall system being the cheapest.

"The plan which the city of Los Angeles has under consideration at the present time for the disposal of sewage is a scheme which will cost, according to our engineers, $12,800,000 for which we will have to vote bonds," declared Mr. Criswell.

Vote To Be Taken

"It has been decided by the council to put this to a vote at a special election held in connection with the primary, August 29.

"We consider that this bond issue is the greatest issue before us at this time. We don't want to detract from its importance. No other bond issue will be submitted at that time.

"The plan, which the city engineer has made, includes a main trunk sewer running north as far as Dayton avenue of a capacity large enough to take care of the sewage of Los Angeles adjacent to that territory and also all the sewage from San Fernando, Burbank and Glendale.

"We expect that some time you people will want to attach to that sewer. We believe that some day Glendale will be a portion of Los Angeles or a portion of Greater Los Angeles. I am firmly convinced in my own mind that at some future time there will be but one government of the territory occupied by the city of Los Angeles and Glendale."

That dumping sewage from Los Angeles into the ocean contaminated the beaches was denied by Mr. Criswell, who asserted that the disagreeable situation at Venice was due to the local sewer system of Venice.

The city of Los Angeles is inter-

Fat–Er–Plump Girls Getting Crowded Out At Telephone Office

While the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company's office here is pretty well supplied with help, Manager Fred Deal, in considering applications for operators' jobs, declares the girls must be of the "slim princess" type.

"Our switchboard facilities for the time being are so crowded that there is little room for heavyweights and the two or three who now are in the employ of the local exchange are uncomfortable unless they are assigned to the boards on the end of the semi-circle.

"Some day we hope to have more elbow room for the operators who answer fifty more calls an hour than is their share, but it can't be helped in this rapidly growing community."

URGES MERCHANTS TO VISIT COUNCIL

Credit Body Says Increase In Business Licenses to Come Up Thursday Night

The Glendale Credit association, C. E. Neale, president; Frank H. Pilling, secretary, is sending letters "To members and all other merchants" urging them to attend the meeting of the city council Thursday night, April 6, at 7 o'clock, when, the communications state, the council "will in all probability pass a tax on gross sales, in addition to our already heavy taxes, as follows:

"Up to $5000, $12 per year; up to $20,000, $30 per year; up to $50,000, $50 per year; over $50,000, $100 per year."

The communication also declares that "It does not seem just that the merchants of Glendale be specially taxed just because we happen to be a merchant."

As already published in The Glendale Evening News, the council has had the matter of increasing business licenses under consideration for some weeks. It is declared at the city hall that more revenue must be obtained to meet increasing municipal expenses due to the continued rapid growth of the city.

The communications being sent out by the credit organization conclude with:

"This is a real vital question and we should all be at this council meeting, Thursday at 7 p. m., and voice our protest. It is up to you, Mr. Merchant, to be there and look after your own affairs. A word to the wise should be sufficient."

Change in Route of Stage Line Proposed

Plans are now under way, it is reported, to re-route the Pasadena-Ocean Park stage line, which passes through Glendale and Hollywood, so that it will tap Burbank.

The proposed diversion would be from Brand and Broadway out Brand boulevard to Mountain street, west to Central, north to Kenneth road, over to Tenth street and Olive avenue through Burbank and thence by the Dark canyon drive into the center of Hollywood, one of the most scenic routes in Southern California.

Burbank enthusiasts declare this would add but one mile to the distance now traversed by the bus line and accommodate many more passengers.

GLENDALE TO GREET NEARBY CITIZENS 'SUBURBAN DAY'

Events Start in Los Angeles and Will Finish Here at Big Mass Meeting

Glendale on Saturday afternoon and night will be hostess to a number of prominent citizens of nearby communities.

The Los Angeles City club is observing this occasion as "Glendale Day."

The object is to bring about a closer understanding of mutual problems.

The program will commence with the usual noon luncheon at the City Club in the Chapman building. This will be followed by short addresses on leading civic topics of the day.

Among the speakers will be Prof. Melville Dozier of the Los Angeles School board, Dr. Carol Aronovici, city planning expert of the University of California, Dr. George P. Clements, manager of the agricultural department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and C. D. Gulick, bus expert for the City of Glendale.

To Be Brought Here

Immediately after the conclusion of the speeches, those who desire to come will be brought to Glendale in automobiles to be provided for the occasion and shown the proposed bus route. Upon arrival in Glendale, the party will be taken on a tour of the entire city in order that the guests may become familiar with the points of interest.

A big barbecue will be served between 5 and 6 o'clock in the Verdugo Canyon. According to C. D. Gulick of 1237 South Central avenue, who was delegated by the city council to take care of arrangements for the occasion, all those desiring to participate at the barbecue must notify operator at the city hall by telephoning Glendale 1300 before noon Saturday. ## Art Exposition Will Be Held in Glendale

Another event in the history of Glendale to turn cultural interests this way will be an exposition of arts, given under the auspices of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, April 25 to 29, inclusive, are date tentatively decided upon by Bert Short, chairman of the committee.

At the meeting of the Chamber's directorate yesterday noon, H. C. Swartz, well known sculptor, and secretary of the Sculptor's Guide of the Southwest, was present to tell of the exhibition, who will include Mrs. Julia Bracken Wendt, Carlo Romanelli, Ella Buchanan and others.

These same sculptors recently exhibited their work at Exposition park and drew an attendance of 50,000. Here it is planned to have lectures free for the school children each morning and in the afternoon and evening combine concerts with the show.

The California Academy of Music, the Pearl Keller school and other institutions which are developing the talents of Glendale young people, will be called upon to co-operate. Mr. Short also is arranging with F. Grayson Sayre to exhibit several of his water colors and while there will be no large number of paintings hung to detract from the sculptures, the blending of the several different arts will provide something unusual in the way of exhibition.

It was made very clear by Secretary Rhoades that this show would not be put on for profit. The artists consider it an educational duty to acquaint the people with their work and the only expenses entailed will be drayage, advertising, rent, etc.

EDUCATOR PRAISES PARENT-TEACHER ORGANIZATION

Mark Keppel, Head of County School System, Speaker at Convention Held Here

"Glendale is very proud today on account of the Parent-Teachers' association," declared Mayor Spencer Robinson yesterday noon in the banquet room of the First Methodist church during his official speech of welcome in behalf of the community to the 450 delegates of the convention from the First District of the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' association.

Mark Keppel, county superintendent of schools, also expressed his pleasure at the occasion and mentioned the privilege of being present with the "real heads of Los Angeles county."

"I suppose you, who are working in this organization, do not have the opportunity to measure its work and set a value upon it as one can who looks upon it from a distance," stated Mr. Keppel. "It is a far cry from the date when the first organization of this kind was started to the present time. I know of no branch of education which has moved forward more rapidly than the side in which the women are most vitally interested.

Need for More Thought

"Certainly, there was great need for more thought for little children. Grown-ups may take care of themselves. It is true that they do not always do so, but that is beside the matter. Little children cannot. If you study laws, you will find that laws are not framed for the protection of children as they ought to be. There has been an enormous improvement in this respect in the past twenty years. The rapidity of the increase in improvement is keeping pace somewhat with the increase in growth of the Parent-Teachers' association.

"There is a tremendous work yet to be done but a great deal has been done, already. I have a notion that some day the women will insist upon a revision of the laws of this state so that the laws regarding childhood will be properly designed—so that children may have the chance they

CITY'S POWER, LIGHT DEPARTMENT ASKS IMPROVEMENT

Glendale Is Growing So Fast Present Facilities Fail to Meet Demands, Claim

From 190 consumers in 1909 to more than 7700 at the present time, the municipally operated electric power and light department has grown out of its present facilities, according to Peter Diederich, plant and production superintendent, who spoke before the Chamber of Commerce board of directors yesterday noon.

"Most of our facilities are eleven years old, poles have to be renewed, financial problems have to be met, and we need warehouses, a garage and other things which must be paid out of the rates. And these rates we are now charging generally are lower than those in surrounding towns.

"Probably there is some slight inequality in some classifications and possibly Glendale's rates are a little high for cooking and heating, but it is much lower than the Edison company's schedule on power. The city charges its consumers just what it costs to do business."

Sold at Less Than Cost

Mr. Diederich then outlined how reasonably street lighting was provided the people here and spoke of other advantages, concluding with the statement:

"The raise in rates has been a matter of necessity. Before the new schedule went in effect we actually were selling electricity at less than it cost us."

W. H. Reeves, city manager, supplemented Mr. Diederich's statement by saying this raise obviated bond issues for replacements.

"If you pay as you go, you do not have to pay double, for interest on a bond issue equals its principal as years roll around," he declared.

A motion was passed which refers the matter of staging an exposition this year to the Merchants' Credit association, with the Chamber of Commerce co-operating. A similar motion prevailed in the matter of several automobile dealers who desired some sort of a show.

President V. M. Hollister commented on their plan to the effect

Shrine Club to Hold 'Stag' Meeting Tonight

Had the Shrine club's "stag" party been held last night as announced in The Glendale Evening News, it is probable that many would not have enjoyed the event on the account of inclement weather changing their plans. # BOY SCOUT TROOP NO. 3 IS MAKING GREAT RECORD

New Leaders Are Chosen and Members Back Them Up in Various Projects

Keen interest is being manifested by the district boy scout officials in the way Troop No. 3 of the Glendale Boy Scouts is forging ahead in its scout work. This troop is under the supervision of Scoutmaster Frank C. Ayars and meets Friday nights at the Central Avenue school from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

Quite recently the whole troop was reorganized and several new patrol leaders and assistants were appointed. The scouts are backing their new leaders and somehow or other an entirely new spirit permeates the atmosphere of every meeting. There's no getting around it, the scouts of Troop No. 3 are acquiring more "pep" every week, it is declared.

The scouts are elated over the prospect of going on a hike during Easter vacation and are already getting their camping equipment assembled. Scoutmaster Ayars has not announced the exact location of the hike but it is thought by the boys that it will be up near the Big Tujunga.

Transfers Reported

Several new boys have been transferred from various cities to the troop lately among which are Scouts Fred Kattleman from Troop No. 5, Alameda, California; Gordon Bevans from Troop No. 2, Kearney, Nebraska; Sidney Sherland from Troop No. 11, Evanston, Ill.; and Edward Scheffer from Troop No. 65, Los Angeles. In addition to these boys are Scouts Lyman Bosserman, Eugene Brecht, Eugene Kille, Kenneth Hellyer, James and Robert Reinhard, Nathan Finch, Alex McPherson and Arthur Kilpatrick.

Lately the troop went on a swimming trip to one of the Los Angeles pools at which time a goodly number of the boys received instruction in swimming while still others took their first class test in swimming. Another event which created considerable interest among the boys was a star study observation at which a large telescope was used.

Troop No. 3 is to take an important part on the program for the presentation of the district council charter which will be presented at the Glendale Union high school, April 13.

Scout Glen Cunningham, also of this troop, has just completed his merit badge test for craftsmanship in wood.

Dr. William C. Mabry Gives Out His Views On Sewage Problem Being Faced by Glendale

Editor The Evening News—In discussing this serious problem which at present is engaging the earnest consideration of many thoughtful citizens, it may be that certain basic facts taken for granted by practically all the community can be disposed of as a preliminary.

First—Glendale must sooner or later have a method of sewage disposal.

Second—Glendale must pay for whatever system is decided upon.

Third—Glendale desires the most efficient method obtainable and at the minimum of cost and inconvenience feasible with efficiency.

Likewise there are certain basic principles which govern sewage problems and probably can also be taken for granted by all, namely—

First—Sewage disposal cannot be absolutely free from objectionable features.

Second—Sewage disposal cannot be made to pay for itself.

Third—Sewage cannot be handled, treated, nor pumped without increased cost—each additional process involved rapidly and excessively piles up "costs," i. e., taxes.

Still further items are considered "basic" from the standpoint of sanitation and public policy as exemplified by the familiar phrase "Greatest good for the greatest number." These are—

First—Untreated sewage cannot be disposed of—yet sewage must be disposed of.

Second—It follows that end products—water and solids—regardless of methods utilized and of disposition must be made practically harmless and unobjectionable.

Third—Sewage disposal by any means must result in loss and discomfort to some individuals—a few must suffer more or less for the sake of the entire community.

The perusal of this array of basic facts might cause one to consider the problem of sewage disposal difficult, but in reality their frank and judicial acceptance reduces the solution to two factors; i. e., finance and sanitary engineering, the latter being of first importance.

Considering our problem then upon the basis of sanitary engineering, what solutions can be offered?

At present the major part of Glendale is sewaged by the elementary principle of cesspools, but one step above the primitive methods of centuries ago. Primitive methods lasted thousands of years and the human race persisted. Cesspools might last as long generally speaking, but in communities cannot endure longer than space available remains and should not be utilized even that period in city life except as make-shifts to cover emergencies or the construction period of a more progressive plan.

Some things can be said in favor of cesspools. Comparatively moderate first cost, up-keep and generally satisfactory operation in sparsely settled tracts. Probably they are reasonably satisfactory from the standpoint of health. Bacterial pollution from cesspools, as a rule, does not travel far. Water percolating through two hundred feet of sand is essentially safe, and through a thousand feet of almost any moderately compact soil equally so. However, if seepage from cesspools enters an underground water channel, unfiltered bacterial pollution may travel almost indefinite distances. It is also true that cesspools and wells cannot exist together with safety to users of waters from the wells. This objection does not apply particularly to our own problem, but is a decided factor in the safety of a water supply drawn from our drainage area and applies to certain districts in Los Angeles. Before the recent installation of the sewage system for Verdugo Canyon this same situation was a very grave menace to all of Glendale and we may well feel thankful that we escaped serious epidemics and that the menace is removed.

On the other hand, a cesspool however well built is very likely to cave in in wet weather and unless grease traps are installed, the filtering walls of the cesspool rapidly clog, the hole fills up, cannot be repaired and must be replaced usually during a more or less prolonged period of nuisance to everybody in a wide area.

The next step higher in the scientific disposal of sewage is the septic tank. This method consists of collecting sewage in a two-compartment tank, the sewage entering at the floor and remaining in the first "air tight" compartment for a certain time, long enough for the non-liquid portions to float and form a "scum" in which bacteria which work only in the absence of air, change the solids to liquids or solutions, which then pass through an inverted U tube to the second air-vented compartment where other bacteria working in the presence of air finish the work of destruction began in the first compartment. The liquid as it leaves this second compartment is nearly harmless and unobjectionable and is disposed of by porous clay drainage pipes loosely set in the ground at proper depth and usually utilized as sub-surface irrigation, but may be used for surface irrigation—a so-called "sewage farm" large or small.

Such an installation should be of sufficient size to contain a week's sewage practically undisturbed and the ordinary family requires about two hundred feet of drainage pipe preferably disposed much like the lines of a pitchfork. A septic tank is not unduly expensive, about one and a half times that of a cesspool, and when properly built, with grease traps which intercept and prevent grease from coating the walls of the tank and drain pipes, etc., and of correct size and drainage, is reasonably efficient, should last indefinitely and is practically free from objectionable features.

How long a tank will last depends almost entirely on a very few factors:

1. Strong chemicals, acids, etc., which kill bacteria, cannot be disposed of in a septic tank.
2. Grease traps must be provided and cleaned frequently. Sand traps are also desirable.
3. Sufficient storage space must exist for the "bacterial scum" to remain undisturbed the required time for bacterial action upon the sewage.
4. Porous soil for drain pipe and pipe sufficient to freely contain the water discharged, or sufficient surface drainage space, are essential.

The objections to the septic tank are few. First, it must be used a month or so before an efficient "scum" and bacterial action are secured and odors destroyed. Second, insoluble parts such as grit, scouring powders, etc., gradually collect upon the floor of the tank and periodically must be removed and this renovation destroys the "scum," which has to reform before the tank is again efficient. Third, during wet weather, especially in heavy soils, the ground becomes water-logged, seepage from irrigation is interfered with, percolation of water from the drain pipes may stop, backing up and bringing to the surface raw sewage just as occurs when a cesspool is blocked or clogged and much difficulty is encountered.

Note: It is upon the principles just enumerated that the Cameron Septic Tank system, much used by cities, relies for its success. Of course the tanks are very large and often in a long series to obtain sufficient time for bacterial action. In some plants elaborate screens and spreading machinery are used to hasten disposal. This plan is practical but should not be used near populated centers because much of the operation is in the open and is likely to be objectionable.

The next higher step in scientific sewage disposal is a combination septic tank with a cesspool for the clear overflow. Such a battery properly installed and cared for should last indefinitely, be perfectly safe locally and is not unreasonably expensive. This combination will not work for any great length of time unless the tank is of ample size to fully reduce the sewage emptied into it. Overflow not reduced as it should be, will of course clog a cesspool eventually though not as rapidly as will a steady flow of raw sewage. The time a cesspool in this connection will last, barring caving accidents, can be measured by the efficiency of the tank.

This septic tank-cesspool arrangement is the one now being used in the unit system in our business district and will succeed only to the degree it complies with the elements above noted for construction and operation.

The business district units have two real advantages, i. e., their installation meets an emergency with comparative satisfaction and safety, and in case a general sewer system later is installed, the collecting apparatus of the units can be "hooked up" with sewer mains with no other economic loss than the cost of tanks and cesspools. Such a loss should not figure over 20 or 25 per cent, and may well be repaid by the service rendered.

The final and latest successful method of sewage disposal consists of a system of collecting sewers which lead to large tanks and equipment for treatment of sewage to reduce it to harmless and inoffensive liquid and dry solids. There are many methods in use throughout the world, ranging from drying beds; "sewer farms," which, as noted before, are practically septic tanks or modified treatment plants with either surface or sub-surface irrigation; to the latest "activated sludge" type. This latter type is the one now being used for the Verdugo Canyon sewage and owes one of its chief

HOOVER ASKS CLEANUP

CHICAGO, April 5.—Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, today demanded a cleanup of the "small minority given to unendurable practices" in the building industry. Speaking before the national association of construction industries, in convention here, Hoover said:

"The first step for the advancement of construction would be the elimination of the practices of the small minority within the industry whose practices are unendurable. They are practices that bring shame to American business and labor and drag into disrepute the vast majority of good men engaged in the industries.

"The government can catch occasional crooks. But the real work of cleaning up can be done better by decent men in the industries."

RECITAL BY NOTED PIANIST PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

Brahm Van den Berg Plays at Meeting of Tuesday Club; Section Announcements

An appreciative audience of several hundred members and friends of the Tuesday Afternoon Club were present at the open meeting Tuesday to enjoy the wonderful piano recital by Brahm Van den Berg, who ranks among the greatest modern pianists in Europe and America.

The concert more than fulfilled the pleasant anticipation of the music lovers and will be remembered among the very best of the club offerings to the women of Glendale.

Through the courtesy of the Loomis-Shuck Music company a splendid Knabe piano had been placed in the club room for the artist's use and a Knabe-Ampico as well. One pleasing feature of the program was rendering of the Jaques Waltz, No. 3, from The Family Album, by Brahm Van den Berg, the same waltz then being played by the Ampico, from a previous playing by the concert artist.

The two numbers, La Campanelle and Rhapsodie No. 6, by Lizst, brought especial delight to the listeners. In the word of a prominent member of the club:

"You could use all the adjectives in the English language and not be able to describe the exquisite touch, and expression of melody." Only those who had the privilege of being present can understand.

Program In Detail

On the program were the following named beautiful selections, with a different charm, and all were received with rounds of applause from the appreciative listeners:

I.

"Fantaisie" ..... Chopin
"Legend" ..... Raff
"To Jacques," Waltz No. 3, from "Family Album" ..... Van den Berg
(The Knabe Ampico repeated "To Jacques" from a previous recording by Mr. Van den Berg.)

II.

"Polka de W. R." ..... Rachmaninoff
"Love's Dream" ..... Liszt
"Concert Etude" ..... Moszkowsky

III.

"La Campanella" ..... Liszt
"Capriccio" ..... Brahms
(The Ampico played parts of the "Capriccio" from a previous recording of Mr. Van den Berg and without a break in the continuity of the music).
"Rhapsodie No. 6" ..... Liszt

The session was opened with Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson in the chair, but aside from the announcements no time was taken up with club business.

A feature of interest on the early part of the program was a short talk by Mrs. George Blesch, of Menominee, Michigan, relative to the work of organizing boys' clubs, in which she has been actively engaged for years, and which is proving so effective in lessening crime among juveniles in the cities.

Miss Irene Eldred, of Tarsus, Turkey, gave a short talk in the interest of the Near East relief, that touched the hearts of her hearers. Miss Eldred has been in Turkey almost continuously since the signing of the armistice until the present time and speaks from personal experience.

Meetings of Section

The meetings of the club sections have been scheduled as follows:

The music section, of which Mrs. Charles Marlenee is curator, will meet at the home of Mrs. Charles W. Meadows, 721 North Brand boulevard, April 14, instead of this Friday as had been announced.

The literary section, of which Mrs. Lewis Hollingsworth is curator, will meet next Monday at the home of Mrs. A. M. Williams, 208 South Orange street.

The drama section, of which Mrs. R. E. Chase is curator, will meet Friday, April 7, at the home of Mrs. Jesse Joseph, 317 West Lexington drive. They will take up the study of "The Sin of David," by Stephen Philip.

The arts and crafts section, of which Mrs. R. W. Meeker is curator, will meet Thursday of this week at the public library.

Announcement was made by Mrs. A. L. Williams, chairman of the ways and means committee, that a big affair for the benefit of the clubhouse fund was being planned for May 24, 25 and 26. She requested members to reserve these dates.

POSTMASTER SEEKS HINTS TO BETTER U. S. SERVICE

Head of Department Urges Comment in Newspapers Be Sent to Capital

Postmaster General Hubert Work is looking to the daily newspapers to keep him advised as to how the post service is functioning, says an official communication received this morning by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson. For this purpose he has asked the local officials to send him clippings of news items and editorial comment, both critical and complimentary to the postal service.

"The newspaper is the medium through which the public is talked to and talks back," he says, "and it is an indispensable aid in improving the service.

"There may be warrant for the feeling toward some public institutions that it is a waste of time to make complaint about poor mail service," he continued, "and it may have obtained in the past toward the postal service, but it certainly did not exist under Mr. Hays and surely will have no occasion to develop during my administration. We are going to see that every complaint is thoroughly investigated and, if well founded, action will be taken to correct any defects. If the service is such as to deserve compliments we hope that those who earn them may receive them as a matter of simple justice."

Postal Improvement Week

Postmaster General Work has appointed a committee to formulate plans and arrangements for a "postal improvement week," which has been fixed as the first week in May, beginning on Monday, May 1, 1922.

"The purpose of the postal improvement week," says Postmaster General Work, "is to stimulate all employes of the department throughout the country to greater interest and greater enterprise in order to perfect the postal service of the country by enlisting the assistance of the public to the end that there may be a better co-operation between the patrons of the offices and the personnel of the system, for, in the last analysis, the real postal system of the country includes those who prepare mail for transmission as well as those who are employed in the postal system proper."

The Short Crucible

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. — Glance down the probable batting order of the Pittsburgh Pirates and you will note a list of estimable young men who score not, neither do they hit. There is scarcely a normal 300 hitter in the entire array.

Fielding? Quite all right. Pitching? Yea, oh, yea; an ample sufficiency. Speed? a great plenty.

Looking over the regular line-up, we have selected but three men who figure to be there with the stick. They are Charley Grimm, a great first baseman; Carson Bigbee, the outfielder, and Walter Schmidt, the catcher. Rabbit Maranville is a good little man in a pinch, but doesn't figure to hit above .260. Indeed, Grimm has yet to achieve anything faintly resembling a .300 average in his two seasons as a regular, although he is considered a good hitter.

Of course, Hal Trainor the new second baseman, and Clyde Barnhart at third may come through with the stick, and in that case we will be constrained to revise our estimates.

In the outfield Gibson has engineered a shift, sending Max Carey to left field and Bigbee to center. This is being done to prolong Carey's baseball life, now gently waning. Right field will be left to the tender mercies of Ray Rohwer and Johnny Mokan. The Pirates, it will be recollected, got away running last year and made a show of the National League race until they caved abruptly in mid-September. Here again, you have the matter of hitting. On that 1921 team were Rabbit Maranville hitting up around .370 for the greater part of the early season; George Cutshaw about the same figure, and "Cotton" Tirney," a recruit, even higher. All were ranging 100 points above and beyond their respective heads.

Therefore when they began to come back to normal, the club started to lose.

There is no better balanced pitching staff in all baseball than that mustered by the Pirates, and for this very essential reason, the team must be regarded as a pennant contender from first to last. No two ways about it, they are really the downright goods, and all appear to be in great condition.

The venerable Babe Adams, in baseball thirteen years, still can win a lot of games in the spring and fall, if nursed along carefully. Wilbur Cooper and Earl Hamilton are a pair of the finest left-handers in the land, and the two Johnnies—Glazner and Morrison—were the finds of the National League last year.

Just now the catching department is in a bad way. Walter Schmidt is cooling his heels in his California bungalow, waiting for Dreyfus to meet demands of a three-year contract at $10,000 per each. Dreyfus says he won't, but with Heffner suspended by Judge Landis for the season, something will have to be done about the matter. At the moment John Gooch, who came up to the club from Birmingham at the close of the 1921 season, is the leading catcher. John is nobody's tramp. We liked the way he handled himself today.

It is a coincidence that Big Bill Tilden and Little Bill Johnston, the two leading tennis players of the world, should each suffer defeat within a few days of each other. Johnston last week lost a singles match in the California inter-club tennis championships to Wally Bates of the University of California, while this week, Tilden, partnered by a fourteen-year-old boy, Al Weiner, was defeated in the doubles of the national indoor championships at New York.

Johnston suffered defeat at the hands of one of ranking college players of the country, a youth who is coming on every day he plays, yet the defeat of the former national champion was a surprise. Tilden, it is true, was defeated in doubles, but even this is a more surprising defeat than Johnston's owing to the fact that Tilden and partner were beaten down by Hartman and Wing, two practically unknown quantities as far as national competition is concerned.

Neither Tilden or Johnston have yet reached the peak of their game and when the season of tournaments rolls round in August both men can be counted on to give a different account of themselves.

There have been many occasions that a really first class amateur boxer has refused to enter the professional realms of boxing. Many such cases can be cited. One of the most recent is the case of Eddie Egan, the Yale varsity boxer. He went to the inter-allied games in 1919 in Paris and won his class with ease. The next year he went to the Olympic games at Antwerp and again won, this time the legitimate amateur world title. On both occasions he was approached by professional promoters and point blank turned down their pleas that there was a lot of money in it for him. "Boxing for money does not interest me," said Egan. "I enjoy boxing as a competitive amateur sport and all the money in the world could not get me into the professional ring."

Now comes little Ray Fee of the San Francisco Olympic club who holds the Pacific coast flyweight title. He is unquestionably one of the cleverest little men the Olympic club has ever turned out. He has been "approached" and here is what he said: "I will never turn professional and that's final. Even if my parents did not object, I wouldn't think of it. I just box because I like it. The money from professional boxing means nothing to me. I value far more the friendships of the fine fellows I have met as an amateur, some of whom have become my dear friends, and I am not going to give up those friends and all associations with amateurs and what an amateur club means, for a professional career."

If Fee retains his coast title at Portland, Ore., this week he will go to Boston for the National A. A. U. championships.

The World Over

By Franklin B. Morse

A certain amount of dismay has been occasioned among supporters of both the University of Washington and the University of California crews at the slashing changes that have been effected by the coaches on the personnel of the crews. Both Coach Wallis and Leader have made ducks and drakes of their first boat. Substitutes have been thrown in and nobody knows whether they are to be in the final selection or not.

All of this recalls the fact that back in the eighteen nineties, Ellis Ward, then coach of the University of Pennsylvania crew, chucked out his entire first varsity, called on his substitutes to make up his first boat and with this outfit had one of the most successful seasons that this university ever enjoyed.

Unquestionably, there are times when certain men are imbued with the idea that they have a cinch for a seat in a boat or a place on a football or baseball team. The result has been that effort has slackened and the team has suffered.

Radical action on the part of a coach is no new idea. It has happened on several occasions that even the captain of a crew of a football or baseball team has been relegated to the sidelines because someone else among the substitutes, was better fitted to fill the shoes.

To the credit of the men deposed, it must be said they have taken the setback with the best of grace. There is no question of the loyalty of the average college athlete to his alma mater. These men, deprived of their heart's desire, stood and looked on without a murmur.

It should not be inferred that a deposed crew or team is not giving its best to the cause. Certainty of a place on a crew or team begets a certain laxity of effort that is subconscious. There is no intent, but the fact remains. This is what the coach must fight and a radical shakeup often has saved the situation.

As far as the two coast crews are concerned, it is more than likely that the personnel will shake down to a return to the regulars, but it is evident that both coaches have come to the conclusion that the men must be disabused of the idea that any of them is possessed of a certainty. There still is a month intervening before the two crews meet. It would be a difficult matter at this time to determine which men, of the winning crew, will ultimately be the personnel of the boat which will represent the Pacific Coast at the Poughkeepsie race.

One thing seems certain, the coaches of both of the coast crews are determined to play no favorites, and the policy is being followed by letting every man know that he has no sure thing, but can count himself merely a candidate for a place in the boat. This is likely to have a salutary effect and there is every probability that, from now on, there will be a greater spirit of competition.

RELIEF MEASURE FAVORED

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5.—The McNary bill authorizing the secretary of the interior to extend the time for payment of construction charges on irrigation projects was passed by the senate without a record vote. The bill, introduced as a relief measure for farmers and cattle owners living in federal irrigation districts, now goes to the house.

City Sewer Problem Discussed by Writer

claims for favor to the fact that aeration of the "sludge" or mineral content of the sewage robs it of the property or becoming putrid — in other words, its power to produce odors. The activated sludge plant comes as nearly as possible to the desired object of reducing raw sewage to harmless and inoffensive fluids and solids. With the added safeguard of treating the run-off fluids chemically, or by adequate sand filters, the nearest approach to sanitary safety is achieved. The solids and derivatives may be converted into more or less valuable by-products such as grease, fertilizer, etc., and the fluid sold for irrigation purposes to partly off-set taxes, but it seems just to again state the basic fact that sewage disposal cannot be made to pay for itself. It is much more likely to become a charge than even a partly paying proposition. This result is due chiefly to the law of supply and demand. End products are constantly accumulating while markets fluctuate, both by season and by supply and demand.

Installation of such an activated sludge plant with chlorination or filtation of fluids is not unduly expensive, does not require a farm, does not need a large tract of land and is nearly inoffensive. It must be located wherever sewage can be taken by gravity flow and that location should be capable of receiving at least 80 per cent of the sewage and as nearly 100 per cent as possible without pumping to be economical in operation. If there exist a dozen locations providing this requirement, the factors of density of population, proximity to public institutions, cost of ground, etc., must be taken into consideration in selecting the one most feasible site. If there is one site only available, that one must be chosen and every other consideration made subservient to the needs and welfare of the community taken as a whole. If some interests must suffer, if some citizens must move, the injured should receive reasonable financial compensation, but not be permitted to obstruct progress.

As a workable and fair solution for the sewage problem confronting Glendale, the following plans are suggested:

1. A committee of local engineers should be appointed by the Council, either to make a topographical map of the entire sewage area or examine such a map if one is available and locate all possible sites where an adequate sewage disposal plant could be economically operated. No other factors need be considered by them.

2. A representative citizens' committee appointed, possibly by the Chamber of Commerce, should then examine the engineers' report and select the two most feasible and favorable sites—all factors considered—submitting their reasons for such selections.

3. The Council should then decide upon type of plant, probable cost of same, call a bond election to provide funds for the disposal plant and intercepting trunk line sewers and at the same time request the voters to express their preference of the two sites recommended.

How would such a plan work out? With surveys and maps available, sewage districts could be laid out according to the topographical drainage areas, the central collecting mains for each one leading to some one of the required trunk lines of the disposal works.

Any district already provided with collecting mains (such as the present business districts) could hook-up at once without additional expense and the system commence operations. Then, as other districts at various times arrived at the necessity or desirability of sewer connections, the collecting mains could be placed by sufficient petitions of each district in the same manner that water mains are now provided. Any district immediately bordering upon a trunk line already paid for by the bond issue should likewise petition for connections and pay the proportionate cost of a collecting system into the sinking fund for the bonds, thus equalizing the costs in all the districts.

Not only does this plan present the advantages of promptly caring for pressing needs and equalization of costs, but it also distributes individual costs over a more or less extended period. First, that of a moderate general bond issue; second, a later district assessment and, third, each property owner could hook-up to his district mains when the system at the time employed by him should have become inadequate or unsatisfactory. However, no new individual plants, neither cesspools nor tanks, should be allowed after the central disposal plant had been placed in commission.

This plan likewise would work to the financial interest of the city. The early sewage intake and operating costs would be small and increase gradually as the sewage increased with each additionally created district and as the districts built up and connections were installed. With this gradual increase also would come growing efficiency of personnel and methods and possible creation of markets for by-products.

As a final and general advantage to us, it may be said no part of the proposed system would become a loss in case of final connection of our trunk lines with a city or grand sanitary district outfall sewer through the San Fernando valley or Los Angeles to a central disposal plant. In any event we would have to pay for our entire sewage collection and discharge system within Glendale limits. The only additional cost would be that of switching the flow of sewage from our own disposal plant to the new outfall sewer line. The disposal plant should always be held as an insurance against an accidental interruption of the outfall sewer with deplorable conditions and litigation such as Los Angeles is at this time facing from the same cause. It is certain that the existing Los Angeles outfall sewer, already inadequate, can never be used by Glendale. There is a possibility, more or less doubtful and many years in the future, that Glendale might arrange to come in on a new and greater Los Angeles outfall sewer. Let us hope so, and let us remember that we will pay a very large sum for it and the privilege when it does come; therefore, would it not be well to have our own system in and paid for against that time?

In the meantime our own plant will have cared for our needs, paid for itself by service and still remain as before mentioned a valuable insurance asset against accidents and emergencies. Simply the opening of a gate to avoid suits and trouble.

In conclusion, just a word regarding Los Angeles' threats to prevent the installation of our own sewage disposal plant. There exists no single scientific nor sanitary ground for Los Angeles to stand on in such a case. It is raw sewage now as against practically harmless products with the plant. It is public necessity for us against noise with them. Los Angeles can no more prevent our sanitary disposal of sewage by methods and in a location approved by the State Board of Health than she can take away our domestic water which for years with equal noise she has threatened to do.

ought to have. Great things have been done by your organization for the childhood of America. There is a wonderful, high, deep and glorious field ahead to be entered."

Message of Peace

Warmest greetings were extended by all speakers during the luncheon to Mrs. Milton P. Higgins, national president of the Congress of Mothers' and Parent-Teachers' association, who was present.

"Today it is not so much what we do as what we are," asserted Mrs. Higgins. "The message of peace is in the atmosphere but we are just like the shepherds of old when the message of peace came to them the first Christmas. We look up and we are sore afraid. Have we good-will enough to secure the peace? The reign of peace is coming on the earth. Remember that obedience to law is liberty.

"The future generation is looking to us and may the parents and educators make public sentiment in our communities so strong that we will reach every home in the nation so that children shall have the right start in life physically, mentally and morally."

A few words of greeting were given by Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson of 246 North Orange street, representing the state federation. Mrs. Charles H. Toll of 1635 Kenneth Road, who spoke briefly of the work being done by the Glendale reading circle, and by Mrs. A. L. Hamilton of Pasadena, first president of the First District.

Metropolitan Life Co. Gives Out Statement

The business statement of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company for 1921 contains interesting matter not generally found in the statement of a financial corporation. It relates to the human side of a great business. The company's assets are more than one billion, one hundred and fifteen million dollars and its policies outstanding are more than twenty-five and a half millions. Many people hold more than one policy and the best estimate of the company is that this number of policies insures, in round numbers, nineteen million individuals. As over twenty million of the policies are the so-called industrial, on which premiums are collected weekly by agents who call at the policy-holders' homes, this gives to a company with the financial strength of the Metropolitan an opportunity for health and welfare work. The statement published shows how the company has accepted this opportunity.

While the year 1921 in the popular mind is put down as a year of dull business, life insurance has been an exception. The Metropolitan again held the record among all companies in the world in 1921 with $1,564,789,607 new insurance placed on the books. Its assets increased more than one hundred and thirty million dollars, and its income was $38,462,919 more than it was in 1920.

While there has been a general public health movement and notable progress in medical science and sanitation, which contributed in part, there is evidence that a considerable factor in reducing the death rate among policy-holders of the company has been the widespread health campaign carried on by the company.

The Metropolitan announces it will continue its best efforts for the improvement of health and the consequent saving of life, recognizing that the confidence which the American people have in the company gives it still greater opportunity to serve them, not only in insurance protection, but in the prolongation of life.

Investigation Ordered

Among other business which came before the board, Secretary James M. Rhoades was instructed to accompany J. G. Ferlin, president of the Power Implement Machinery company to Modesto and San Francisco and investigate the plants he was bringing here. Mr. Ferlin told the board that besides the $38,000 building there would be $125,000 worth of machinery at work, providing a payroll of upwards $4,000 a month.

The Glendale Chamber will back Monrovia in obtaining a rehabilitation hospital for tubercular former service men; the board indorsed the daylight saving plan urged by Los Angeles; it ordered the printing of 5000 advertising booklets; and considered an art show which is described in other columns.

ested in maintaining the cleanliness of the beaches, according to Mr. Criswell, because they are patronized largely by its own residents.

The construction of activated sludge plants for the treatment of sewage and the production of commercial fertilizer was discounted by Mr. Criswell on account of the expense involved not only in the erection of such plants but in their operation and the impracticability of selling the fertilizer. He called attention to the fact that Los Angeles had no need of rectifying the water for irrigation purposes and stated that he did not believe Glendale needed it, either.

Answers Legal Questions

W. B. Mathews, special counsel for the public service department of Los Angeles, was present at the meeting and answered several questions put to him in regard to legal interpretations. He stated that he knew of no legal objection to Glendale's being permitted to connect with the Los Angeles sewer system provided the Los Angeles City Council should agree to the proposition.

W. E. Hewitt, chairman of the citizens' sewer committee, presided at the meeting. A number participated in the discussion.

Baldwin Shirt Company Well Established Here and Is Building Nice Business

The Baldwin Shirt company, which deals exclusively in custom made-to-measure shirts, will soon be employing eighteen or twenty women, according to George B. Karr, manager, who was interviewed at his new factory in the Gateway Market building, 1725 South Brand boulevard. Ralph W. Dick is assistant manager and factory foreman.

The original investment in machinery, fixtures and stock totals about $10,000 and the work done is making shirts, night-shirts, pajamas, and collars to the individual's measurements. Orders are obtained through personal solicitation of traveling salesmen, although a sales and display room is maintained for Glendale trade to serve those who call.

The Baldwin Shirt Company was established in Baldwin, Kansas, in 1887. This is the home of the Methodist College, Baker University, and several public notables who have graduated from there, at one time during their school life earned a few dollars by selling Baldwin Shirts. Baldwin is a school and church town and as the business developed it was necessary to seek a larger location, so, in 1907, the plant was moved to Parsons, Kans., this being the "home town" of George B. Karr, who had become interested in the company a short time before.

The Parsons factory expanded and soon had a dozen representatives who covered all the surrounding states—from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Memphis and from St. Louis to Salt Lake City.

Then a couple of salesmen were started in California, one working out of Fresno and one from Stockton, but the long distance made difficult the prompt service the company has always maintained—and incidentally gave Mr. Karr a desired opportunity to move to California and live there. So he drove through last summer and canvassed the southern part of the state from San Bernardino to San Diego and soon decided that "The fastest growing city in America" would be the best place to locate the new factory and that its growth might keep pace with the city.

The business is just now being started, but Mr. Karr and Mr. Dick have every faith in its success and development. Both men have moved their families here to live and are already Glendale boosters.

"Our factory back there," said Mr. Karr, speaking of the plant at Parsons, "is one of the largest exclusively custom made producing plants in the country and for the last three years has made more than 25,000 shirts a year, every one made to a customer's individual measurements. They will continue there but all our western business will be turned to the Glendale factory.

"S. M. Dick, and a mighty loyal organization, is in charge of the business and their faithfulness is one of the most gratifying things of my work," added Mr. Karr. "During the more than a year that I was in France with the Red Cross during the war, not a single one of our factory force nor salesmen on the road left our company, though every one of them was offered many inducements to do so. Most of our employes have been with us more than eight years.

"Visitors are always welcome at the factory and the button-hole machine is of special interest to the women—the same one makes and cuts any size button-hole. All machines are electrically driven and the plain stitchers run as fast as 3500 stitches a minute. A full stock of shirtings is carried. We once made a shirt for a man 5 feet 6 inches tall who weighed 500 pounds and was 84 inches around the waist—sure we charged him extra!"

This Shows Latest In Radio Watch

The latest in miniature radio sets has been devised by Henry Levison, a fifteen-year-old high school boy of Norwood, Ohio, who has made a tiny radio set which fits into a watch case. All he needs is a headpiece, ground and aerial wires and he can hear anywhere. His range is a large one, considering the size of the instrument. He has heard as far east as Pittsburg and as far west as Texas. The picture shows Henry receiving a message with his tiny apparatus.

ELECTROMOTIVE FORCE

In order to have a flow of water through a pipe it is necessary to produce a pressure somewhere to force the water to flow. This pressure may be created by means of a pump to which the pipe is connected, or it may be created by filling a tank full of water and allowing the water to flow to a lower lever through a pipe. In either case the water would stop flowing as soon as the pressure was removed.

Although electricity is not a form of matter, as it were, its action in many cases can be compared to that of water. In order to produce a flow of electric current it is necessary to provide an electrical pressure or electromotive force. Whenever the electromotive force ceases the current also ceases. When the electromotive force does not exist its value is, of course, zero.

There are various ways in which an electromotive force may be produced. Two of the most common practical ways are to produce it by chemical action or by mechanical motion. All batteries, including dry batteries and storage batteries, produce electrical pressure by chemical action. All dynamos, generators and magnetos produce it by the mechanical motion (rotation) of a certain portion of the machine.

Another way to produce electrical pressure is by friction. If a piece of amber is rubbed with a silk cloth quite briskly for a few moments the amber will be given a positive charge of electricity and the silk a negative charge. The presence of these charges may be noted by holding the amber, for example, near some light bits of paper, which will be attracted to the amber. Now, if the amber and the silk could be quite highly charged and joined together by a copper wire a momentary electric current would flow from the amber to the silk. This shows that there was an electromotive force present between the amber and the silk. The current flowed only momentarily because the electromotive force was not continually maintained. To maintain it we should have to continue rubbing the amber, and while it was in contact with the silk a current of electricity would flow through a copper wire connecting them. The momentary current corresponds somewhat to the flow of water from a tank to a lower level. When the tank becomes empty there is no more pressure and no more water flows unless water is pumped back up into the tank.

The unit of measurement of electromotive force is the "volt," and it is, therefore, often called "voltage." Electromotive force is very often abbreviated "E. M. F.," and it is customary to use the abbreviation when referring to electrical pressure.

THE TWIN ADAPTER

Many a radio fan is possessed of two pairs of head telephones, each of which can be plugged into a jack of a receiver or amplifier cabinet. But what use are two such separate telephones if Mrs. Fan wants to listen, also? Both cannot be plugged into the same jack at the same time.

A wideawake manufacturer decided to overcome the difficulty by making a twin adapter, which can be plugged into the cabinet jack and will itself allow of the two telephone plugs being plugged into the adapter. The illustration shows the adapter with its cover removed and the method of holding two telephone plugs at one time.

The device is very rugged mechanically, and will stand considerable abuse. The insulating material of the adapter is a composition called "thermolax," which has been found to have very remarkable insulating qualities and to be practically unbreakable. The contacting members are powerful and lasting and insure a good electrical contact between the plug members and the adapter contactors. The appearance of the whole is very pleasing, as it is finished in a velvet black, the plug part being brass in both sleeve and tip

When one pair of head telephones is plugged into the adapter, the other contact pieces make contact with each other, so that the circuit through the telephones is closed. When another pair of telephones is plugged in they are connected in series with the first pair, and there is little or no decrease in signal strength. The series connection is the proper one.

The twin adapter will very probably have a host of admirers when it is placed upon the market.

MARY GARDEN WILL SING FOR RADIO FANS APRIL 11

Several Different Listening in Parties Will Be Given By Glendale Residents

By GEORGE VAN SANDS,
Radio Editor, The Evening News

Do you know that on Tuesday, April 11, Mary Garden and her entire company of the Chicago Grand Opera Association will sing at a broadcasting station in Los Angeles? Her audience will number into the thousands and will be heard within a radius of approximately 1800 miles. Price of admission is absolutely nothing, provided you have a radio receiving set, or know of a friend who has one.

Our society editor informs me that several different radio parties have been arranged for that evening and a great many Glendale folk who have never heard this great artist will be able to enjoy hearing the silver notes of her voice being transmitted through space via the Hertzian waves, at the rate of approximately 186,000 miles per second. The exact hour of the evening and the wave length on which her voice will be broadcasted will be announced later through this column, so that there may be no unnecessary delays in waiting, or in finding the proper wave length to tune in on.

Radio Club Proposed

Several radio enthusiasts have approached me on the subject of forming a radio club in Glendale, and it appears to be a brilliant idea, and we will be very glad to have suggestions from anyone interested.

The Glendale Evening News will be only too glad to render every possible aid at its command in this respect. I can see no necessity for any membership fees or dues, but do believe such a club would have a tendency to bring into closer relationship all those that are interested in this marvelous new science to the mutual benefit of all.

Let us have your ideas and suggestions on the subject. Send them in to the Radio Editor and we will publish them as space allows. No reason why Glendale can not have a radio club that will compare favorably with any in the east.

Questions on Radio and Their Answers

Question—Will you please tell me what is now considered the best type of aerial for a crystal detector type of receiver?—L. B. H., Glendale.

Answer—One of the largest manufacturers of this type of receiver in their latest literature on the subject advise a four-wire aerial not less than sixty feet long. With an aerial of this kind they guarantee a range of from twenty-five to thirty-five miles. With a vacuum tube outfit this distance would be increased considerably, and with a VT detector and a two step amplifier the range would run anywhere from 300 to 1000 miles with the aerial as above described.

Question—In one of your previous articles you mentioned that the government station at Arlington sends on a 1500 meter wave length, how far is that in miles?—C. H., Glendale.

Answer—To give a concise, comprehensive definition of a wave length as measured in meters would be too long an article to publish in this column. But, briefly, and using understandable terms, the various wave lengths used by the different broadcasting stations have absolutely nothing to do with the miles that a station may be heard. and in giving the meter length of the waves simply is a unit of measurement, used to designate the length or distance between the peaks of two adjacent undulations of the same wave. You might have a very good receiving set located only a few miles away from Arlington, but unless your apparatus were arranged so that it could tune up to that wave length, you would not be able to hear it, and yet, on the other hand, Arlington is in daily communication with stations in Continental Europe. To avoid confusion some unit of measurement must be used to designate the different wave lengths used in radio, and a meter has been adopted as the unit of such measurement.

Question—I have a small crystal set that I would like to take with me on a picnic out in the country. Please advise me how with the least bother and trouble can I make some makeshift aerial and "ground" so that I can get it into quick operation no matter where I happen to be in the country?—L. R., Glendale.

Answer—Good results can be obtained burying a small metal pail filled with water a couple of feet in the earth to be used as a "ground" and using a near by mesh or barbwire fence for an aerial.

Question—Under what branch of the government are broadcasting stations licensed?—C. L. D., Glendale.

Answer—At present they are under jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce, in time of war they would undoubtedly be under the supervision of tht war department. This, however, refers in no wise to receiving sets, on which absolutely no restrictions of any kind are placed.

Question—How far back east can the broadcasting stations at Los Angeles be heard?—A. M. V., Glendale.

Answer—These stations are readily heard in western Kansas and Nebraska, a much more powerful station is in the course of construction that should be heard as far east as New York.

Little Children to Be Cut Off From Supplies Unless Aid Is Sent, Is Declared

Tomorrow Is 'Bundle Day' For Near East Relief Workers Here

Tomorrow is Near East Relief "bundle day."

Used clothes and shoes with warmth and wear in them are wanted at once. Householders are asked by the committee to search closets and make up bundles.

School yards are bundle stations. School children will take bundles to schools tomorrw.

Cash contributions with which to purchase foodstuffs for early forwarding to the Near East are being received by E. E. Osgood, treasurer, N. E. R., First National Bank of Glendale.

For information call Rev. R. W. Mottern, at Glendale 1513-W.

Donated autos for workers' use tomorrow are solicited by the committee.

Glendale Near East relief workers, redoubling their efforts to collect used clothing and shoes, also cash with which to purchase California foodstuffs, for early forwarding to Armenia and Trans-Caucasia, call attention to recent advices from national headquarters of Near East relief that an enforced cut of 25 per cent in child rescue appropriations of the relief agency, caused by decreasing receipts, means that succor must be refused to 50,000 orphans in institutions flying the American flag in a land where there is no food.

The committee urges that the "life insurance policies" taken by interested friends at Glendale churches and Sunday schools last Sunday be circulated at once and the funds obtained therefrom be turned in promptly to E. E. Osgood, treasurer N. E. R., First National Bank, of Glendale.

Shipment To Start

A large shipment of relief supplies, including donations from northern and southern California, is expected to go forward on the steamer Pennsylvania from Los Angeles about May 1. Glendale contributions will help to make up the cargo.

Tomorrow is Near East relief "bundle day." Grammar and high school students have distributed about 17000 appeals to householders throughout the city.

So desperate is said to be the need for warm clothing and so great are the quantities required that the committee is appealing to all readers of The Evening News for every serviceable garment and pair of shoes which can be gathered tomorrow. Families are asked by the committee to search closets and make up bundles.

Stations Established

Grammar and high school yards are bundle stations. School children have been asked to take bundles to school yards tomorrow. It is planned to have members of the P.-T. A. of each school on hand to receive bundles and care for them until trucks arrive to carry them to Near East relief warehouses at 5930 South Moneta avenue, Los Angeles.

Besides the grammar school students enlisting in support of "bundle day," more than 1400 high school students yesterday volunteered to distribute 2000 additional clothing appeals to homes.

For information call Rev. R. W. Mottern, 211 North Adams street, telephone 1513-W.

Several donated automobiles with drivers for "bundle day" workers' use tomorrow, Thursday, are solicited by the committee.

'Theodora,' Noted As Picture Production, At Glendale Theatre

More than two years of preparation and the expenditure of over 15,000,000 lire (which is more than $3,000,000 at the present low rate of exchange) in creating "Theodora" which Goldwyn will present at the Glendale Theatre today, Thursday and Friday.

It is the same wonderful production that has scored such a remarkable success at the Astor Theatre, New York, and in a few other principal cities. The people of Glendale are fortunate in being one of the first cities to witness the spectacle which was made in Italy by the Unione Cinematografica Italiana.

"Theodora" is a screening of Sardou's famous romance, built around the historic personage of the Empress Theodora who ruled the Roman empire in the sixth century as the wife of the celebrated Justinian. Historians have disagreed for many centuries about the virtues and the faults of the great Theodora, but all agree that she was of surpassing loveliness and exquisite charm. She was the daughter of a lion tamer in the circus at Byzantium (as Constantinople was then called) and led a life of pleasure until she met Justinian, the heir to the throne of the Caesars. He fell madly in love with her and their marriage elevated her to the throne when he became emperor.

And then for a mad moment of love she sacrificed all—see it!

THAT'S ALL

Daylight Saving Fallacious
Sports, Indoor and Outdoor
Blackmail vs. Swindles
Partnerships Precarious

By Gil A. Cowan

SOMEONE suggested that the Glendale Chamber of Commerce board of directors indorse the "daylight saving" idea. Los Angeles wants to put it into effect if other coast cities agree. The idea seemed to meet with favor, although it is doubtful if this war measure ever will come into practical use again.

Daylight saving, in its final analysis, is a little joke played on the person who works it. It is not a fad alone, but a fallacy which gives advantage to the pleasure-seeker probably, but does no more good than the "overall" idea.

Instead of turning the clocks ahead one hour and jazzing up the timepieces during the summer months, it is perfectly possible for the ambitious to get to work an hour earlier and quit an hour earlier. Wherever it is possible, it is a good idea, but there are hundreds of industries where the hours are sufficiently early.

As was pointed out yesterday, no juggling can put more than twenty-four hours in one day. But without daylight saving the "wise bird" will do his work either early in the morning, or late at night, and avoid interruption during the busier hours of the day.

Hundreds of the most successful people in Glendale are either up and at it by 6 a. m., or will be found quietly at work around 10 p. m. when others are enjoying themselves. It is much better, however, to do the most active work in the early part of the day and reserve the late afternoon for recreation.

Baseball and golf are two favorite pastimes for the American business man. Either game is a great tonic for tired minds.

And for the "home-loving" folks, the radiophone is offering a new field for entertainment that interests the whole family.

Knowing that both sports and wireless are the things the public is most interested in, The Glendale Evening News is maintaining special departments with the best features available on the subject.

Howard McGillis, heads this paper's sporting department with his resume of local events, while such brilliant writers as Davis J. Walsh, International News sports editor, Bill Unmack and Franklin K. Morse of Pacific Sports Service furnish features that are unequalled.

George Van Sands is editing the radio column in The Glendale Evening News, and his articles of local interest will be supplemented by explanations of radio by E. H. Lewis, instructor in the New York Y. M. C. A. radio school, the largest of its kind in the world, and articles on new apparatus and devices by Ralph Brown, engineer for the Cutting & Washington Radio corporation. The last two are New York Herald-Sun experts.

The Glendale Evening News obtains its radio, sporting and news photographs from the Herald-Sun syndicate, Copic Service and the International News Service, an enviable array.

The gentle art of blackmail has been discussed in this column. Here is what the Hollywood Daily Citizen has to say along similar lines:

"The big crime in America today," says W. Sherman Burns of the Burns detective agency, "is that of blackmail," which he says is robbing prominent citizens of at least three millions a year, and the names of the victims of which would prove sensations if they were ever made public.

The detective is perhaps a little strong in seeking to make out blackmail as the one big crime.

A bigger crime in America today is the crime of the stock-selling swindlers who are yearly mulcting people of modest savings of all they possess in a total sum that would make three millions of blackmail look trivial.

Blackmail is a dastardly crime, but in most instances it finds its support in the wrong-doing of the victim of the crime.

The stock swindler, on the other hand, finds his victim among the innocent people.

Blackmail finds its victims as a rule among the rich.

The stock swindler finds his victims among the poor.

The blackmail victims can employ the Burns and Pinkerton agencies to aid them in running down the wrongdoer.

The stock swindled victim is generally so inconsequential that he cannot even get action out of a police department.

Let's do what we can to check blackmailing but let us not deceive ourselves into thinking that it is the biggest thing before us today in the way of crime.

In congress there has been introduced a bill that seeks to prevent the stock swindler from using the United States mails.

The purpose of the bill is most worthy.

It should have the support of citizens everywhere.

In discussing the "biggest crime" with a deputy district attorney who was in Justice Owen C. Emery's court the other day, he said that "partnerships" permitted of the greatest swindles in California today.

Undoubtedly he is right, for any person, who goes into partnership with a clever swindler, is bound to lose more than if the swindler has the disadvantage of working from without the realm of personal knowledge.

"Freeze out" is the slang term of most such swindles, but stock assessments in cases of incorporations; injudicious agreements and many other means are used to accomplish the same ends.

Look around and see if it isn't a fact.

BIG TUJUNGA WASH BRIDGE SOON TO BE COMPLETED

Hope Expressed Structure Will Be Completed in Time for C. of C. Trip

Every hope is expressed that the bridge across the Big Tujunga wash on the state highway between Sunland and San Fernando will be ready for traffic by April 19 when the Glendale Chamber of Commerce trade excursion makes its tour of the San Fernando valley. Owing to many heavy rains great delay has been experienced and the temporary structure has been washed out three times.

The work started last June and fifty bridge builders have been camping near the site. W. M. Ledbetter & Co. are the contractors and this firm expects to turn the completed job over to the county between the first and tenth of May, although traffic in instances such as the Chamber of Commerce motorcade may be permitted before that time. Otherwise the party will have to detour by the way of Roscoe.

Hearing on Water Rates

The state railroad commission will hold a public hearing on the Haines Canyon Water company rates in American Legion hall at Tujunga on April 24. The consumers have organized and Judge Herman Breidt and E. C. Carlson are organizing a committee to solicit funds and employ engineers, accountants and others necessary to testify, also lawyers to represent the water users. A mass meeting is called for Thursday night of this week.

Studebaker Entertainment

A Studebaker entertainment was given in the Rivoli theatre at Van Nuys last week by the Packer Auto company, San Fernando valley distributers, who have headquarters here. More than 800 people saw the program and heard John R. Huff, the factory representative, speak on the making of motorcars. S. C. Packer and members of his Glendale sales force were in attendanne.

Organize Civic Club

An eastend civic club was organized in Eagle Rock last week with B. F Pearson, general superintendent of the Southern California Edison company, named as temporary chairman. S. A. Ratliff and G. Gordon Whitnall, the latter secretary of the Los Angeles city planning commission, were among the speakers. Eastern Eagle Rock now is one of the most rapidly developing sections of southern California and this move toward making necessary civic improvements will have the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce of that city.

In Charge of Playground

'Fool's Paradise,' Big Cecil De Mille Film T. D. L. Attraction

Delightful in every respect, Cecil B. De Mille's latest Paramount picture production, "Fool's Paradise," was presented with unqualified success at the T. D. & L. theatre yesterday. Filmed with careful attention to detail this is unquestionably one of the best productions ever made by Mr. De Mille and it is no less pretentious than "The Affairs of Anatol," "Forbidden Fruit" or any of its recent predecessors. Mr. De Mille's thorough artistry as producer is seen in every "shot" of this captivating screen romance. The story suggested by Leonard Merrick's "The Laurels and the Lady," was adapted with taste and skill by Beulah Marie Dix and Sada Cowan. The theme is one of intense heart appeal and the various scenes which take one from France to Mexico and thence to Siam, with their kaleidoscopic views, are beautiful in the extreme. The leading roles are excellently portrayed by Dorothy Dalton, Mildred Harris, Conrad Nagel, Theodore Kosloff, John Davidson and Julia Faye. "Fool's Paradise" will be shown tonight and tomorrow.
